

ABSTRACT

A handheld computer is disclosed. The handheld computer includes a housing, and an expandable display assembly supported by the housing. The expandable display assembly provides a viewing area when the display assembly is stored and provides a larger viewing area when the expandable display assembly is expanded. A touch sensor is disclosed that is associated with the expandable display. The touch sensor is enlarged along with the display, when the expandable display is expanded.